

WHO IS THIS LADY?

Miss Martha W. Coulling, one of the drawing instructors of the University in the past, was around to see Longwood University grow from a small institution of a few hundred women to one of the largest women's colleges in Virginia of the time, with her 50th year teaching, in 1932, having an enrollment of almost one thousand women.

After studying at George Peabody College and Teachers College, New York, Miss Coulling had served on the schedule committee for years and the vice president of the school.

She has been a faithful asset to allow what is now today Longwood University to flourish and grow.

WHAT HAVE PEOPLE SAID ABOUT HER?

- ❑ From Pauline W., a former student and now colleague- “will continue to be a strong influence in the lives of all who have had the privilege of knowing you.”
- ❑ From Tammie K., a family friend and colleague- “You have been generous in many ways, but most of all in that very worthwhile gift of yourself to students who needed sympathy, advice, encouragement, to your church, to the women of Farmville.”
- ❑ From S.C. Hatcher, a former pastor from Farmville, now working at Randolph-Macon College- “Please allow me to tell you how much your beautiful, consistent life meant to me while the pastor of the Farmville Methodist Church. I soon learned you represented the finest things and could be counted on to stand for them.”
- ❑ From Virginia B., a colleague- “The loyalty and cooperation you have given to this institution, to your profession and to me is an ideal that any teacher can strive to follow and I want to say to you now that it has been the finest influence on my career.”
