

The trees are alive

slh0397

A Storybird
The trees are alive

By

slh0397

Illustrated by

Oya's Factory

Published on December 3, 2018

© Storybird 2018. All rights reserved. Not for resale.

The trees are very beautiful and are home to many special creatures.

Without the trees, these creatures would have no where to live or have no air to breathe.

One day a mysterious man named Peter came into the forest and noticed the very tall trees. He was hoping to cut them down. He only wanted these trees because of the magical wood dust on them.

Some of the creatures heard this and were frightened, they didn't know what to do.

The creatures decided to go to Ana, who oversaw all the trees. Her house was right behind them and every day she would come make sure they were being taken care of. Ana heard the news and was shocked.

She told the creatures not to worry and called her father, Jobe to come protect the trees. He did by chasing Peter away.

Peter was chased out of the woods and ran to a city. He noticed that no trees were there and he saw a problem. “If no trees are here, how will all these people breathe?”

The next day, Peter planted 10 trees near the city so people could breathe. He realized we need to be planting and taking care of our trees instead of tearing them down.

The world needs your stories

