

Journal 6

Alyssa Oppedisano

Longwood has many resources to help you achieve good grades, be a great student, and be an overall well rounded person. They have services ranging from personal health to schooling. The three main places that I will and have utilized this year is the career for academic success, the writing center, and the counseling and psychological services.

The Center for academic success is one of the more major and helpful resource centers that will help the students of Longwood get good grades and be successful. This center is located in the library. They have different spaces set up so you can either work by yourself, collaborate with a group, or even work with a librarian. This center holds places so that every type of learning can be done. They even have set tutoring times where the tutors can go to whatever place in the center and tutor students in the subjects they are struggling on. I've already used this place to do homework and have math tutoring with my friends.

The writing center is also a great resource that will help you succeed here at Longwood. This center is also located in the library and has people on duty to help you write. This semester I am not in any English classes, but I have a lot of papers and always struggle on where to start or finish them. If I go to the writing center I know I will get help from people who know what they are doing. They will also help me understand how to set up my paper or even help me understand what I am talking about.

The CAPS center is also a great place a Longwood that will not only help me, but help other student be successful. CAPS stands for "Counseling and psychological services." This is a free counseling center offered for students and faculty here at Longwood. This center will just help me with anything I need including school and personal life crisis.