Personal

Girl Scouts of America

Summer 2008-2009

While in middle school/high school, I participated in an annual summer camp for kids that my girl scout troop held in our community. The first summer, the camp was held in a small pool house. We had to plan as well as think on the fly, of ways to keep the children active and happy given our space constraints. The second summer we were able to hold the camp in the town community center. The community center allowed us to be more creative with the children since we had more space for smaller groups. Some examples of our planned activities are obstacle courses outside and a variety of crafts inside.
