New Auditory Distinguishing Hearing Aid Offers Guaranteed Translation

Audio Ascension has released Lingua - a hearing aid that translates different languages in real time during conversation. It is the only product of its kind that can translate language immediately - within 1 second.

With the use of a small microphone, the algorithm database of 50 languages registers speech processes of a language, from terms, phrases, and sentences, and analyzes the input of the language spoken. It then voice-translates to the desired language by finding those same words and phrases in the listener's native language. Lingua connects to a phone through Bluetooth where the user can then control language, accent recognition, volume, and pitch through the Lingua app.

“Lingua will not take away the benefits of learning and mastering a second language but enhances opportunities for those who do not have the resources available to achieve mastery in a second language,” says Dr. Brenda Keith, CEO of Audio Ascension.

For the price of $800, the user receives Lingua, a lifetime warranty, and a free download of the Lingua app. With a few pushes of a button, one can truly open up a world of opportunities to access new conversations.

“We believe that cross-cultural conversations blossom relationships and open new doors. We strive to bring people together by bridging communication gaps and eliminating language barriers”, said Keith. “Our job is to make sure that it succeeds- we guarantee it.”
