Holographic flower arrangements announced

FARMVILLE, Virginia -- Holographic flower bouquets have been announced by FlowerLite. Their Forever Flower Vase is a device that, when activated, displays a holographic, 3-D flower arrangement.

"We are so excited about our newest product using the latest technology of holographic light," said David Moss, director of FlowerLite Communications.

The Forever Flower Vase is an electronic device, with a charging system as well as solar power system, and includes an instructional manual. Once activated the vase will display a flower arrangement of the purchaser's choice. Using a recent advancement in light technology, the flowers appear real from all angles.

The purchaser may select three different styles of vases, and then choose flower species and colors from a database of thousands of choices. The customer has the option to purchase various essential oils to add scent to the visual display.

"I can't believe how real and beautiful this Forever Flower Vase looks," said Edith White, a customer who recently received a vase for her 80th birthday. "A few drops of the essential oil that came with it fills my room with fragrance. And these flowers never die."

The vases can be shipped in decorative gift boxes and include a note from the purchaser. The vases are priced starting at $55. The essential oil packages range from $10 - $30.

FlowerLite is offering a free essential oils package to customers who order their first purchase in the next two weeks.
