
Headings

ENGL 483: Abby Deguzman,
Meaghan Mitchell, Sami Parrish,
Whit Jones, Brooke Harris

Why Headings?

- ❖ Headers are there to clarify texts for the audience and make reading the content easier.
- ❖ It breaks up the text
- ❖ Makes it easy to navigate

Examples

GO ON, TURN THE CORNER

I promise you this: If you make the effort to try some of the things I've listed here and just stick with it for a while, you will turn the corner with Twitter. I never thought I would get the hang of it, but now it's as much a part of my day as checking email and Facebook. People who work in other fields can probably get away with avoiding Twitter, but for you, an educator? It's part of an essential 21st century toolkit. Make this the year you really start using it. ♦

READY TO TAKE THE NEXT STEP?

To help teachers learn how to make the most of Twitter, I have created an online course called Twitter for Teachers and Students on a brand-new learning platform for educators called Blend. In less than 90 minutes, you

So you have a Twitter account. Now what?

MAY 1, 2016

JENNIFER GONZALEZ

6 WAYS TO MAKE BETTER USE OF TWITTER

1. FIND YOUR TRIBE.

One of the greatest things about Twitter is that it allows you to find like-minded people, no matter where they are in the world. Once you've found

Now it's your turn!

Log onto your own blog and look over your headers that you have originally created. Consider what we all have talked about and make changes to your headers you already have or create new headers!