

EN-LIGHT(E)NING TALKS

Longwood Faculty and Staff Would Like to Teach You Something. Quickly.

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 23 12:30– 3:15 P.M.

BEALE PLAZA

The faculty and staff of Longwood University invite you to a series of short, informative, and fascinating lessons in anticipation of the 2024 Election. An opportunity for Q and A will follow each 10-minute talk.

docemus docere - we teach to enlighten

12:30 Scott Grether

Associate Professor of Sociology

Racial Gerrymandering in Virginia

12:45 David Magill

Professor of English

Looking Presidential in Film and Television

1:00 Josh Blakely

Director of Brock Experiences

There's Too Much Jesus In My Government

1:15 Greg Mole

Assistant Professor of History

“Arrrr” Is For Representative Government: How Pirate Democracies Can Help Us Navigate the Current Election Cycle

1:30 Alyssa Lowery

Visiting Professor of Philosophy

Many “Governments”: Elizabeth Anderson and the Importance Of Voice

1:45 Jen Fraley

Dean of Students

Beyond The Echo Chamber: Why Freedom Of Expression Matters On Campus

2:00 Ian Danielsen

Associate Professor of Social Work

“Yes We Can” – How A Farmville Teenager’s Close Call With A Registered Sexual Offender Became A Father-Son Public Safety Policy Initiative.”

2:15 Sarah Tanner-Anderson

Associate Professor of Education/Asst. Dean of Graduate and Professional Studies

Sparking Some Good: Impacting Positive Change in Your Community

2:30 Ryan Stouffer

Associate Professor of Communication Studies

Shifting Responsibilities: How Consumers Navigate and Stay Informed In Today's News Landscape

2:45 Kris Paal

Associate Professor of Communication Studies

Getting Constructive About Election Conversations

3:00 Cainan Townsend

Executive Director for the Moton Museum

From Moton to Montgomery: Reflections on the 1965 Voting Rights March

