Reflection on SOCL 351 Project

Before taking this course, SOCL 351, I thought I had a understanding of what family violence was and how you can prevent it from happening. I learned that my understanding was no where near to the extent of what family violence is and can look like. Specifically in this course, I worked on a project where a group and I were able to pick a topic in family violence and create a project. My group and I chose to create a project on child neglect and abuse. Throughout creating this project, we did lots of research and found alot of facts ans statistics about child abuse and neglect that we then applied to our project. A area of improvement in our project that I think we could have worked more on was finding more statistics. I think that people would be shocked if they knew how many children are abused and neglected by parents or adults. I learned profesional skills on how to create a brochure online, how to find scholarly articles, and how to efficiently collaborate with my teammembers. Working in a workplace, it is important to find accurate information and work well with others. My contribution to this project was creating the online brochure through a website. I think I have a strength in creating visuals online that are appealing to the eye and colorful with photos to catch the readers eye. A area of improvement I could work on for the future is collecting more scholarly articles.
