I scored a 21 in surgency which was my weakest dimension. I am not shocked that surgency was my weakest dimension because I am not a very social person and I do not plan to take on a leadership role in the future. I scored a 35 in both conscientiousness and openness to experience. I am not shocked that conscientiousness is one of my strongest dimensions because ever since I turned 16, I have had a job and I always work my hardest and remain reliable. I am also not shocked that openness to experience was also my strongest dimension because I am always looking for new opportunities to learn especially in the workplace because it may help me in the future.

It is important to know my motive profile as a social worker because it shows what I am looking for in my career. Since my weakest dimension was surgency it shows that I have no need for power so its not what I am looking for in my career. Since conscientiousness was one of my highest dimensions it shows that I have a need for achievement. I scored a 30 in agreeableness which is still high on the scale it shows I have some need for affiliation.

I scored a 100 on the ethical behavior assessment, I believe I answered the questions truthfully because I always try to do the right thing because I do not want to do something unethical and lose my job because of it. I just do not think it is worth the risk.
